And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?
Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like.
He is like a man which buildeth an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock, and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it: for it was founded upon a rock.
But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth; against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great. — St. Luke 6:46-49.

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Hog Grades and Profit

The lower hog prices get, the more important it is to get into the top grades for top prices and grade bonuses. One essential for high grading hogs is of course the correct type of breeding stock. However you can't change the type of your sows and boars overnight without considerable expense, and you can't change the type of feeders you have on the farm at all. There are some things you can do with your present stock that don't cost anything and which will make you money. The main reasons why hogs are graded down are:

(1) Too fat, (2) too short and (3) too heavy. Some of the things you can do to help are: (1) Reduce the heavy feed the last six weeks or so by using more oats in the ration. Let the pigs have exercise. (2) Check the weight of your hogs and if over finish is costing you grades, market at 190 to 200 lbs. for best grades. Remember that fat is expensive, gain in terms of feed cost. (3) Use alfalfa hay in your feeding. Hogs can handle up to 10% of their feed in the form of alfalfa. These practices can reduce your feed cost and increase the profit you get out of your hogs.

Vitamins for Breeding Stock

Deficiency of Vitamin "A" can result in weakness or loss of calves, pigs and lambs. This can be overcome by supplementing the normal ration. For cows and ewes, vitamin "A" can be obtained in dry form which is easy to feed. For sows the easiest way is to use a fortified feeding oil mixed with the feed. Animals on feed may also need extra vitamins but not nearly as much as breeding stock does.

Stocks New Cattle or Hogs?

The Department of Agriculture assistance policy for commercial cattle and hog raisers is still in effect. Full particulars are available from this office. Anyone going to need a new bull next spring should look into the matter now as there is a strong possibility that good bulls will be scarce by spring.

POPPY DAY

Ed. Note: The following story was submitted in a recent year's essay competition. It was written by Miss Myroslawa Pidruchny and was classed the top of its field.

What Poppy Day Means to Me
Boys are curious, especially little boys. Billy was nine, and all day long you could hear him playing his grandfather with questions about the "Why" of things.

Today was Remembrance Day, and everyone was wearing a poppy. Billy could hear the people on the street corner repeating "Buy a Poppy for Remembrance." "Help the war veterans with a few comforts." They fought for your freedom, remember them."

He walked up and down that street several times, till the expressions established themselves in his mind. Then he raced around the house to find his grandfather. "Why" said Billy "are they selling poppies today? Who are the Veterans? Where did they fight?"

The old man put down the rake, lit the pile of dry leaves, and walked away a short distance to sit down in the wooden lawn chair. Billy crouched close to his heels repeating "Why... Why must we remember? Why do they wear poppies? The old man sighed and said "Sit down and listen."

Once upon a time our neighbour country became jealous of our holdings and our good country. They began to covet our lands and our homes. They wanted to subjugate us to their will and dominate our lives.

We had lived in a free and democratic way of life too long, to permit such liberties. We told them in no uncertain words that we valued our way of life. We appreciated and enjoyed the freedom of a self-appointed government; in a country of robust, respectable and loyal citizens; and we would not exchange these accretions for any promises of an easier life under their management and exploitation.

When they became ugly, we equipped an army, an air force and a navy of our finest young men and sent them to fight to protect our lands, our homes, our aged and our children. Many of these young men died under shell-fire and gunshot wounds. Many came back crippled. But they had quelled our neighbor foe and once more we could go about our living peacefully.

We rejoiced in our victory with those who returned, and we sorrowed for those who died. When the first feeling of relief and thankfulness had passed, we singled out one day in the year on which we would get together to remember our brave men who had fought for our country. We buy a poppy to remember our dead. They were buried in a cemetery in Flanders fields in France, where poppies grow profusely over the graves. The money collected from the sales of the poppies, we buy necessities and comforts, and distribute them to our crippled veterans, some of whom have lain in hospitals for twenty and thirty years. We gather for a Memorial service to remember that each one of us must prepare ourselves to perpetuate that freedom that our veterans have won for us. Only thus can we repay them for that supreme sacrifice—their young lives; and safeguard for their children the same freedom they guarded for us.

For those who have retired from work, it is a very poor idea to collect symptoms of illnesses and apply them personally. Reading up on all the ailments in the book may make a fascinating hobby but it could lead to so much brooding that the reader can imagine he has more of. If there is any suspicion of disease, the doctor is the authority to consult. In many communities there are clinics which are helpful in these matters.

Billy didn't quite understand everything that he heard, but he grasped the pride, the thankfulness and the relief in his grandfather's voice; and in his heart was born a resolution to grow up to be as brave as the young men who had gone to war to fight for their country. But first of all he realized that he could help if he bought a poppy today.

"Grandfather, may I buy a poppy today, to help the Veterans?" he asked.

"You may, Billy, and when I burn these leaves I will go down the street and buy a poppy too."

WOMAN'S WAY

"DECORATING TIP"

Deciding to buy a new carpet can be a worrisome experience. You know you'll have to live with such a purchase a long, long time. What color, kind, design to buy? How will it look with the furniture? How will it stand up to wear and tear and fashion changes?

If you have ever wavered among all these important questions, you will be interested in a professional decorator's "Carpeting" magazine. It struck me as such a good idea and so simple and obvious, I wondered why I had never heard of it before.

"Study what is being used in new restaurants, clubs, hotels, trains or any other public places recently re-decorated," he said. These are usually done by professionals.

He explained that professional decorators have to be well ahead of the field in new ideas, colors and designs. While local stores are inclined to stock "what sold last year," the trained decorator knows what is good among the newest things and dares to be different.

Carpet manufacturers themselves learn from the decorators what will prove most successful on the Canadian market. The designer said. Public reaction to new colors and designs is the supreme test.

He referred to twice carpeting as an example. A few years ago stores were afraid to stock two-toned carpets. Canadian decorators took them up enthusiastically and now two-toned carpets are everywhere.

Public rooms also give the toughest wear and tear testing to Canadian carpets. A variety of man-made fibres are now used either alone or mixed with wool. Besides giving hard wear, they offer benefits in colorfastness and styling variety and can be made in all qualities and price ranges.

Carpets are made in Canada in such variety they are no longer a strictly luxury item. Whether your carpet is to be economical or expensive, you can be guided by the choice of the professionals. Their choice will not only stay in fashion for a good long term, it will also stand up to other home requirements.

Give a Child a Book -- Give Children Libraries

By Senator Mariel McQueen Ferguson,
Patroness, Young Canada's Book Week, 1958

This is the tenth year that the Canadian Library Association—Association Canadienne des Bibliothèques has sponsored Young Canada's Book Week—La Semaine du Livre pour la Jeunesse Canadienne. During this time progress has been made toward providing Canadian children with more and better books, both in French and English. Young Canada's Book Week also has aroused in children a greater interest in good books, but much more remains to be done before all Canadian children have an equal chance to enjoy these privileges. Very few, if any, private libraries can supply the need of rapidly growing young minds, and to fill this need Public Libraries are necessary. Today, in rural Canada, only 15 percent of our children have access to Public Library services. Efforts should continue until these services are available to all Canadian children.

The first book that interested me as a child was Black Beauty, which a friend of Mother's gave me, and which Mother knew well herself and discussed with me. It opened a new world to me and perhaps both my love of reading and of horses goes back to that little book.

All young children have a keen desire to have stories read to them and to learn to read books for themselves, but that desire may be dulled or turned toward harmful books if the best type of book is not made available to them. In the last few years this urgent need of children was made evident to me when a small library was established in my home city of Fredericton, largely through the support and impetus given by the Fredericton Council of Women whose members were insistent that a children's library was greatly needed. The eager interest of the children has made it a great success and the demands on the children's section, and the adult section as well, have proved so great that the library will soon need to seek larger quarters.

Parents, teachers, librarians and all who are interested in children could enrich the reading done by children if they would not only encourage the reading of good books but would themselves become familiar with the books and talk them over and discuss and explain them to the children.

During Young Canada's Book Week every child should receive at least one good book, and if possible the donor should take sufficient interest to see that the child receiving the book has a chance to talk about it with an adult who is familiar with it and who can explain it and discuss it intelligently.

Reading is one of the greatest joys of life and when we help children to become interested in books we give them an opportunity to secure for themselves that precious heritage, to which they are entitled and which is treasured by so many other people today—a real love of books and reading. Sir William Osler said "Money, invested in a library gives much better returns than mining stock". Money, invested in good books and put into the hands of children will have far-reaching returns.

Laff with us

For its size, says a scientist, nothing causes more devastation than an H-Bomb. Bet he never came home with lipstick on his collar.

A group of Russians showed up unexpectedly at the Pearly Gates. St. Peter looked at them with amazement and then announced: "I don't know why you're come up here. You can't come in, you're atheists."

Whereupon one of the group stepped forward and replied, "Who wants to come in. We just want our dog back!"

The confirmed tramp was at his usual spot trying to collect his daily money from those with warm and weak hearts. One man came along and the beggar greeted him personally: "Good morning, Mr. Smith. It certainly is a fine morning. Could you spare me a few dollars this morning."

Mr. Smith took a one dollar bill out of his wallet and handed it to the bum.

"There is something I can't understand," said the beggar in a whining voice. "Year before last every time I would approach you I would get a five dollar bill. Last week you always would give me two dollars. Now this year the most I get out of you is one dollar. What has happened?"

"Well," explained the generous man. "Year before last I was a bachelor. Last year I only had a wife to support. This year I have a wife and one child to support."

"Oh," said the bum indignantly. "What are you doing—raising your family on my money?" — News of the North, Yellowknife, N.W.T.

Dangerous combination

A child and a match (or cigarette lighter) can create a disaster in a matter of minutes. Left alone, those experimental little fingers may not be able to resist just trying out the effect of one little match.

Children are the cause of a great many fires that destroy property or, worse, take lives. But the grownups are not immune. The adult who impatiently slouches onto a reluctant fire a dash of coal oil is much more to blame than the child with a match, since the younger culprit has the excuse of lack of experience, and the fact that he had those matches can be blamed upon his elders. But the person who hasn't patience enough to use the safe way of lighting the fire is a menace. There are still thousands of coal or kerosene stoves left in the country and they can be as temperamental as any get out, especially when you are in a hurry. But a splash of coal oil, especially after a match has been set to the kindling is not the remedy. A safe way of using coal oil in the case of real need is to dip thin bits of wood into the oil and set them among the other kindling before setting the lighted match. Scraps of wax paper and small pieces of wax candle, mixed in with the kindling will also help to persuade the fire to light without the danger of a flare-up.

If there are small children in the house where there are open fires, cook stoves or coal oil lamps, don't leave the youngsters alone even for minutes. In rural areas where mother must dash out to the barn she should take the children along, if it is possible. If some other emergency arises, don't leave the small ones alone where they can set light to bits of paper or matches. Almost every week, Canadian radio and press carry stories of fires in which children have died—sometimes because they were left alone and neglected for hours but often because in an almost unbelievably short time, there has been a sudden flash fire.

FIGHTING RUST WITH CHEMICALS

The recent discovery by plant scientists at the Canada Department of Agriculture Research Laboratory, Wainwright, of a relatively simple and inexpensive chemical, viz., nickel chloride, for the control of stem rust of wheat is a step forward in the never-ending battle against this very destructive plant disease. However, as research progresses, it becomes more and more evident that the solution of the stem rust problem is not a simple one.

Chemical Control Impractical.
Over 60 years ago, partial control of rust was obtained by applying chemicals to growing plants of wheat. The results of these early investigations as well as the more intensive studies of recent years, have shown that certain chemicals, if applied at the right time and in sufficient quantity, usually will reduce and suppress wheat stem rust. Nevertheless, the economic practice from such a rust control practice are still problematical. In some years it would be profitable, in other years it would be an economic loss. Consequently, it is not yet possible to recommend that chemicals be used as a practical rust control measure in the production of commercial grain crops in the Prairie Provinces.

Resistant Varieties. The use of rust-resistant varieties is, of course, the simplest and most effective method of controlling rust. Through the use of modern breeding methods and improved techniques for testing a large number of hybrids, it can be expected that Canadian plant breeders will be able to develop new rust-resistant varieties of wheat that will provide some protection at least against the sudden appearance of a new destructive race of stem rust, such as 15B. Chemicals, even today, must be considered only as a second-best method to the use of resistant varieties in the fight against rust.

Gift Suggestions:

One's Christmas list never seems to grow smaller, but if anything it expands. If your problem is a gift problem, perhaps these suggestions will help:

For the young ones or grandchildren this is a special treat and fairly inexpensive in comparison to the real thing. Design a train on a flat wrapped box with the liquorice for tracks, chocolate bars for box cars, and peppermints for wheels. The engine may be made from an ordinary match box painted black. Chopped up black liquorice can be placed in the box to resemble coal or wood, to complete the treat attach a piece for the smokestack.

This year, when you are doing your Christmas baking, why not use some of it for Christmas gift packages? A small fruit cake or plum pudding, several jars of cookies or homemade candy are gifts which are just a little bit out of the ordinary. Small jars of your favorite homemade jam or jelly make wonderful treats for older people who are living alone or sons or daughters who are unable to be home for the holiday season.

If your daughter likes sewing wrap a box in several yards of material as wrapping paper, use a tape measure for ribbon and several spools of thread for the bow. It's different—the surprise package is on the outside. Another suggestion is to buy 1/2 yard of 54 in. plaid material to make a head scarf. Blind stitch the edges and fringe and knot the salvage ends. To match this scarf one could cut mitts out of the same material and line the mitts with other material such as an old matted scarf. A book on etiquette, magazine subscription, or perhaps a starter for china or footwear are other ideas.

For the male members, magazine subscriptions, favorite records, the racks, cribbage board, or their favorite science fiction or mystery, as well as perhaps an addition to their favorite sport or hobby are some suggestions.

For mother, outside of wearing apparel and household equipment, magazine subscriptions, china or flatware to match sets, pinning shears, potted plants and future promised tickets to the football game or maybe just a night out at some luxurious hotel when the opportunity arises, would delight her.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CUSTOMERS OF THE B OF M

Here's a 3-BILLION-DOLLAR Story for You...

L. Anderson, Manager
Irma Branch
Bank of Montreal

Yes, you've written a three-billion-dollar story in your bank-book this year. It's my bank's annual report for 1958.

And it's a story you can be proud of, because it's about the money you have on deposit at the B of M.

Throughout the year, your bank keeps that money hard at work through loans and investments — expanding, improving and pioneering Canadian enterprise of every description and size... financing Canadians of every calling and building Canada in every sense.

Because of your growing deposits, the B of M's 141st annual report — just published — shows that the money you have entrusted to the Bank has passed the three-billion mark for the first time in its history.

Clearly the facts behind the figures in your bank's report show that the dollars you save work hard and long to secure not only your own future, but the future of the nation as a whole.

Highlights of the B of M's
141st Annual Report

DEPOSITS: Because of your confidence and that of more than two million other Canadians in all walks of life, the B of M holds over three billion dollars in deposits. Half these deposits are made up of the personal savings of private citizens — hard-earned dollars that mean a backlog of money for their use. At the end of the Bank's 141st year on October 31st, 1958, total deposits stood at the record figure of $3,038,349,556.

LOANS: During the year, your Bank has made many thousands of loans to business and industrial enterprises for production of every kind — to farmers, fishermen, oil-men, miners, lumbermen and ranchers — to citizens of every calling, and to provincial and municipal governments and school districts. As at the end of October, B of M loans amounted to $1,416,518,876.

INVESTMENTS: Always keeping a good proportion of the money on deposit in quickly available form, your Bank has $1,004,904,111 invested in high-grade government bonds which have a ready market. This money is helping to finance government projects for the betterment of the country and the welfare of all Canadians. Other securities held by the Bank, which include a diversified list of high-quality and short-term industrial issues — bring total investments to $1,229,918,562.

4-H RECORDS

Records are just as important for 4-H members as for their parents. At buying time weigh the 4-H calf, V. Janssen advises calf club members, then jot down your findings in the record book. Also enter the calf cost and an estimate of the amount of feed required.

Mr. Janssen is Associate Supervisor of 4-H Clubs in Alberta. Just how much feed you are putting into your animal will be revealed by bimonthly feed weighings, he says. More frequent recordings are even better. They will give a truer average at the year's end.

Siating your animal's progress will give concrete facts at the end of the year as to whether your undertaking was a financial profit or loss. Besides telling you much about your animal, keeping records will develop business-like methods that are always useful.

In Canada's early days the official census-taker was required to list the number of swords and firearms in each home.

B of M Deposits Reach 3 Billion Mark

Deposits placed in the safe-keeping of Canada's senior financial institution have risen to a new record level past the three-billion mark, according to the Bank of Montreal's 1958 annual statement, released here this week by Louis Anderson, manager of the Bank of Montreal's Irma branch.

Deposits now total $3,038 million, he said, or $406 million more than at October 31, 1957.

The report also shows B of M resources exceeding $294 billion for the first time in the bank's 141-year history and a further strengthening of reserves.

B of M loans, however, show little change in the year, standing at $1,417 million for 1958 against $1,438 million for 1957, the manager said. This amount includes a 31 per cent increase for 1958 in NHA loans, now at more than $171 million, enabling a greater number of Canadians to buy their own homes, he added.

Strong Liquid Position
The statement also shows the bank's traditionally strong liquid position improved, with quick assets reported at $1,928 million, representing 62.1 per cent of total liabilities to the public, as against 54.8 per cent last year.

Largely responsible for this rise in the B of M's liquid assets is the increase in the bank's holdings of federal and provincial government securities, which rose from $657 million a year ago to $1,004 million at October 31.

Valuation of bank premises also rose—from $36 million in 1957 to almost $41 million—a clear indication of the continuing expansion of B of M facilities to meet Canadians' growing requirements.

B of M Earned More
The 1958 statement of earnings shows B of M operations here, across Canada and abroad produced a profit of $22,889,000. Of this amount, $12,533,000 has been set aside to pay the bank's income taxes, leaving a net profit of $10,356,000 for the year—$708,998 more than in 1957.

Shareholders received dividends totalling $8,854,564 on the basis of 41.53 per share—or $3,628,436 less than the bank's income tax payments. Dividend payments represented a return of 5.97 per cent on the shareholders' funds.

Basketball Season Opens

On Friday, November 14th, the Irma High School basketball team ventured down to play the Viking teams in the local gym. The girls played the first game, defeating Irma 21-9. Point-getters for the locals were Lois Sheeler, Marianne Josephson, Verle MacLaren, Beverly Gares, and one of the Irma girls (this last basket being unintentional, of course).

In the second game the Viking boys emerged victors by a 33-14 score, thanks to points scored by Henry Pobuda, Garry Schuler, Joe Sevcik, George Roddick, Rick Bell, Stan Voltner, Bob Wesley and Duncan McArthur.

For Viking it was a very successful evening and we hope to repay their visit shortly. Our regular league games begin on the 28th of November with Bruce High playing here.

2. The secretary reported that he had contacted the Fire Commissioner's Office and an inspector had called at the hospital. The matter of a steel grate for heating the hall upstairs was checked. Matron's Report was read by Miss Day and accepted.

It was suggested that we change the present pump to a different type, and Mr. Golka would accept the other pump at full value as trade-in. It was also reported that he had been contacted with regard to changing the toilets in the new wing, and Mr. Child is to check further into the matter.

Bills and Salaries totalling $12,067.42 were approved on a motion by J. P. Rozmahel and carried.

Tree Planting Campaign, 1958

Opening in April and running through until the middle of October, the Canadian Forestry Association's familiar Tree Planting Campaign, in charge of Mr. Alex Paton, visited 123 communities in Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, with 223 meetings held to a total attendance of 14,495 people.

This has been a very dry season and in some areas the Car travelled through severe dust storms, the result of soil drifting. In certain areas the farming people had a grim reminder of the thirties, focusing attention on how vulnerable the open plains are to drought and wind. These conditions, emphasizing the need for protection, resulted in increased interest in tree planting and soil conservation. In addition to those attending the meetings a large number of farming people took advantage of the Car's visit to discuss their problems with those in charge and the general question period, following the meetings, was not only well attended, but often lasted until midnight. The use of trees as field shelter is being given increasing attention and more farmers each year are making practical application of their value in protecting both soil and crops. Many districts in the Conquest Saskatchewan area suffered from some soil drifting, and a visit to Conquest gave actual proof in this dry and windy season of the virtue of field shelters. Mr. Paton described a visit to Conquest as a "revelation" and states, "On the way to Conquest we saw ditches filled with good top soil all along the highway, a serious loss to the farmers. At Conquest, however, even though the soil is light and sandy, there was no evidence of soil drifting, the answer was trees. Here they have a large area of land (272 square miles, nearly eight townships) protected by 700 miles of field shelters, made up of six million trees. At the time of our visit the crops looked in excellent condition, and the benefit gained by snow moisture was very noticeable. Since the introduction of tree planting machines, which can plant at least 1,500 trees an hour, an increasing number of farmers are building these living green walls around their land so they too may enjoy the twin blessings of protection from wind and the ability to conserve moisture."

Two new N.H.L. captains this season

Two of the six National Hockey League teams have new leaders this season. The two new captains are Gordie Howe at Detroit and Eddie Litzenberger at Chicago. The other four N.H.L. captains are all repeaters from last year. They are Fern Flaman at Boston, Maurice Richard at Montreal, George (Red) Sullivan at New York and George Armstrong at Toronto.

Howe has replaced Red Kelly

as Detroit captain, while Litzenberger replaced one at Chicago.

The Black Hawks tried some new last season by not having a captain but four alternate captains.

THE TALL GIRL, often has the problem of being very slim.

Wardrobe-conscious career girls with this problem choose clothes carefully to give the illusion of softness and bulk. The new deep, pleated, looped and brushed wools are ideal. Bold patterns and lighter tones also give the effect of added width. The bold paisley print, deeply pleated skirt, cap sleeves and belt all add to the illusion of width in this two-piece dress. Soft and sheer wool challis is practical as well as flattering. It packs beautifully and is comfortably warm although light as a feather.

Truck-trailers-on-railway-flat car

"First" in Canadian transportation was shared recently by Winnipeg and Port William with the carriage of "piggyback" truck-trailers-on-railway-flat car part of a passenger train.

Out of Winnipeg, two Reimer Express trailers left on Saturdays on the Canadian Pacific's transcontinental train number six. This is a brand new service for common carrier truck transport," said J. B. Allen, C.P.R. piggyback supervisor at Winnipeg. "It is designed," he said, "to give early next-morning delivery of Winnipeg shipments at the Lakehead."

Ten cars have been equipped for this service, allowing five each way each day.

First piggyback shipments between Winnipeg and eastern Canada points for "for hire" truckers were made in March. Since then additional points have been added in the rapidly growing service.

Canadian Pacific Transport Company also handles piggyback westward from Winnipeg to ten large Canadian cities.

In the midst of the 1958 Canada Savings Bond campaign it is worthwhile reminding people in the country and smaller communities that they can enter into this Dominion-wide savings program as individuals. They can, furthermore, do it quite conveniently through their banks and through sub-agents of the registered investment dealers in their province.

Dealing with the banks, for example, they can purchase bonds on the instalment plan and have the monthly payments deducted from their accounts. Or they can purchase from the banks and pay their instalments in cash. This procedure can also be used in purchasing from a dealer's sub-agent.

In most cases this method of planned saving would be just as convenient as being in an "establishment" or a firm in which payroll deductions are made for employees purchasing Canada Savings Bonds. It would certainly be convenient for all who make regular trips to their banks which would include all farmers who make regular trips to town for any other purpose. In smaller towns places of business are not far apart.

Generally speaking, people are well sold on the idea of saving through a top-ranking investment medium. Canada Savings Bonds have the added advantage of being cashable at a moment's notice at par plus accrued interest. This makes it a type of investment particularly suited to those who are saving for a specific purpose and at a time planned in advance. With a non-fluctuating security backed by the Dominion of Canada they have no worries about when they should sell or whether they will get the full amount they need in case of a depressed bond market.

"Please"

"A few weeks ago, I saw a girl struck by a car as she tried to cross the street. I saw a father race toward her and hold her to him as she struggled with the agony of death. I saw the plane he had made for her crumble, and I saw the look of despair that came over his face. I could only offer prayer that such a thing might never happen again."

"Today my daughter, who is six years old, started off to school. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is 'Scout,' watched her leave and whined his belief in the folly of education."

"Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, a girl with yellow curls, and about the boy across the aisle who makes faces; about the teacher who has eyes in the back of her head; about the trees in the schoolyard and the big girl who does not believe in Jesus. I said, 'I wish I could, it's not possible for me to be with her all the time. I have to work and pay for her home, her clothes and her education.'"

"So, Mr. Driver, please help me to look out for her. Please drive carefully. Please drive slowly past schools and at intersections. And please remember that sometimes children run from behind parked cars."

Please don't run over my little girl."

Bible well used Book in Royal Household

The Bible is a well used Book in the Royal Household. The connection of the Royal Family with the Bible, and the Bible Society have been long standing. One King's name is immortalized in the King James, or Authorized Version. The printing of the Bible in England is supervised by Royal Charter.

Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, and the Queen Mother are both patrons of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The Duke of Edinburgh usually reads the Scripture lesson in the churches when the Royal Couple attend Divine Worship.

Canada's strength as a moral influence in international affairs is based largely on the fact that her beginnings were founded on the teachings of the Royal Book — The Bible.

SASKATCHEWAN POTASH PLANT NEARING PRODUCTION STAGE

Construction work at the plant of Potash Company of America, approximately 15 miles east of Saskatoon at Patience Lake, is entering the final stages as the deadline for the start of production nears. Scheduled for production early in November the finishing touches are now being carried out on the $20 million dollar project with the official opening slated for early next month.

Initial drilling to the potash beds 3,000 feet below the surface started some three years ago. Sinking of the shaft presented a new problem to the engineers as the varied types of sedimentary soils were encountered. To overcome the problem a refrigerated ring consisting of series of small holes around the shaft were drilled and filled with refrigerant, then the shaft was sunk through the frozen sedimentary soils to the potash beds below.

The Saskatchewan potash beds, which stretch in a narrow belt across the south-central area of the province from east to west, are considered the largest known reserves of potash in the world, and production from these beds will become an important mineral product in Canada's export trade. In the early stages it is expected that the main customer will be the agricultural areas of the middle and northern United States although as the reserves in other fields such as New Mexico and some European countries diminish, increasing supplies will be exported from Saskatchewan.

A second potash mine is now under construction at Esterhazy while another 12 to 15 companies in southeastern Saskatchewan, hold acreage under lease throughout the potash belt.

LOCAL INDIAN RESIDENTS had a chance to air some of their social problems at a conference held in Saskatchewan House, Regina. The conference is a three-day event. Youngest attendees were Janet Dieter aged seven (left foreground) and her sister Connie aged five (right foreground) who sang duets at an evening social. Their father, Mr. W. P. Dieter, is first vice-president of the Canadian Native Society. Eleven years old, Carol Dieter (centre), a cousin of the duo singers, came from out of town. The conference, sponsored by Regina Welfare Council, resulted from a questionnaire concerning social conditions circulated among Indian residents in the City. Five local Indians, including the president the Canadian Native Society, Mr. John Thomas Annapok, presented papers. Canada's only Indian senator, the Hon. Senator James Gladstone from Alberta, was a guest speaker at a luncheon and Premier T. C. Douglas spoke at a banquet in the evening.

Vote, liquor for Indians discussed

More than 100 Indian Chiefs and Band Councilors representing 57 of Saskatchewan's 61 reservations voted recently to defer decision on proposed voting rights and liquor legislation for one year.

The Indian delegates were attending a two-day conference at Valley Centre, Fort Qu'Appelle, sponsored by the Saskatchewan Government Committee on Indian Affairs—the first time in Canadian history that such a full representation of provincial Indians has convened. The representatives expressed the opinion that Treaty Indians were not sufficiently informed to make a decision at this time, and that the attending delegates would be able to explain the two questions more fully to them as a result of information received at the conference.

In his opening address to the conference, Premier T. C. Douglas warmly welcomed the delegates as brothers, assuring them he did not use the term lightly. Mr. Douglas introduced the discussion topics, voting rights and liquor legislation, commenting that "it is always wrong to compel people to live under a law which they had no part in making."

The central part of Indian life in Saskatchewan and Canada, according to Mr. Douglas, lies in the Indian Treaty, and he assured the delegates that nothing the government was suggesting would weaken those treaties. He pointed out, however, that the treaties must be interpreted in terms of today. The words "medicine chest" for example should mean health services, and "plow" should refer to agricultural implements and services.

Following Mr. Douglas' address the delegates were divided into five groups to give each representative an opportunity to explain the views of his band.

Group reports reflected varied reactions. Opposition to provincial franchise was based mainly on the fear it would endanger the Indian's Treaty Rights. Many Chiefs had been instructed beforehand by their bands to reject the province's vote, but spoke in favor of it themselves. Indian delegates from near the Manitoba border favored the vote, having observed benefits derived by Manitoba Indians.

Roma delegates felt that changes in liquor legislation might cause further social troubles on the reservations, but most felt that drunkenness in the towns, bottling and homebrew would be greatly diminished if Indians were allowed to enter beer parlors and take liquors to the reserves. Special guests were Senator and Mrs. James Gladstone of Cardston, Alberta. As Canada's first Indian senator, Mr. Gladstone expressed great satisfaction at the wide representation at the conference. "When my people can speak out in one voice I will be better able to present their needs and wishes to Ottawa," he said. He urged the Indian people not to hold back because of lack of understanding. They should realize that the young people must go out and learn to adapt themselves to the white man's ways, but also preserve the Indian culture.

Information on Indian reaction to voting and liquor privileges in other provinces was brought to the conference by Albert Thompson of Dallas, Manitoba, and Frank Calder of Prince Rupert, B.C.

Speaking on behalf of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, which he founded, Mr. Thompson said that Manitoba Indians did not lose any treaty rights as a result of obtaining provincial franchise and that adjustment to liquor privileges had been moderate.

Frank Calder is an ex-member of the B.C. legislature, and has been active in Indian and labor affairs in that province. Federal and provincial Indian legislation today tends to increase the Indians sense of responsibility. He cited the power invested in local councils and the new monetary and loans policies. He stated that fear was the first reaction to provincial franchise among B.C. Indians, and that now among Saskatchewan bands.

Indians had discovered however, that they did not lose any rights but gained many such as an amendment to the Education Act allowing Indian children to go to white schools, hospitalization benefits and improved liquor legislation. However, B.C. Indians are still dissatisfied with the liquor Act and are now proposing a new resolution, allowing Indians to take liquor to the reserves. Following the reserves will be the next problem he said and consideration was being given to training their own men for the purpose.

Toward the close of the conference, Chairman Hon. J. H. Sturdy, proposed that the Indian delegation set up an Indian Advisory Committee to meet with Government representatives, and to carry out an Education program on the reserves before the next conference.

Bill was forced to testify against his good friend, Sam, who was charged with theft. Bill didn't want to hurt his friend, but he didn't want to tell a lie in court. "Well," said Bill to the judge, "I wouldn't call Sam an out-and-out thief. But if I saw a chicken and if I saw Sam hanging around the chicken-house, I'd make it a point to roost high."—The North Star, Norway, Saak.

The committee will be made up of one representative from each of the nine Indian Agencies in Saskatchewan.

Woman's Way

MADELINE LEVISON

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE PICTURE

I am in trouble with the Canadian Association of Consumers. A while back I wrote a column to the effect that lack of consumer demand for large size dresses must mean that Canadian women are all getting slimmer. I quoted dress manufacturers' claims that they could not sell large sizes anymore.

"Talk! so," according to the CAC. One of their membership's continuing beefs is that large size women's dresses—size 40 and over—are in great demand but practically unavailable in Canadian stores. The CAC discussed the problem thoroughly at its recent national meeting and passed a resolution that one of its committees "do something" about the situation.

Now I find that both sides are right. The dress manufacturers have facts and figures to prove that store buyers are ordering dress stocks in very much smaller sizes than they used to do. The manufacturers naturally assume that the women customers of the stores concerned must have all gone on a diet. The CAC can also prove that its members' complaints are quite justified.

However, between these two groups are the "middlemen" storekeepers. Apparently they just think they know what their customers want. Perhaps large size ladies don't complain enough. Perhaps they just walk out disappointed and try other stores or resort to a dressmaker.

My CAC informant declares that the women themselves are the ones who can straighten things out. When they see a dress they would like, they should request the storekeeper to order it especially for them in the larger size. A few more requests will wake up the store keeper to the fact he isn't pleasing all his customers. The manufacturer receiving such specific orders will also change his mind.

The chain reaction will benefit everybody. Happy customers mean more business for storekeepers and manufacturers. Women should never underestimate their power to right such wrongs.
